Ian Copsey • Yup - that's why I said we'd need a break above 10,594 to confirm. Until then, yes I agree there is still a risk - and one I feel could be more likely - of seeing a marginal new low before this takes off again.

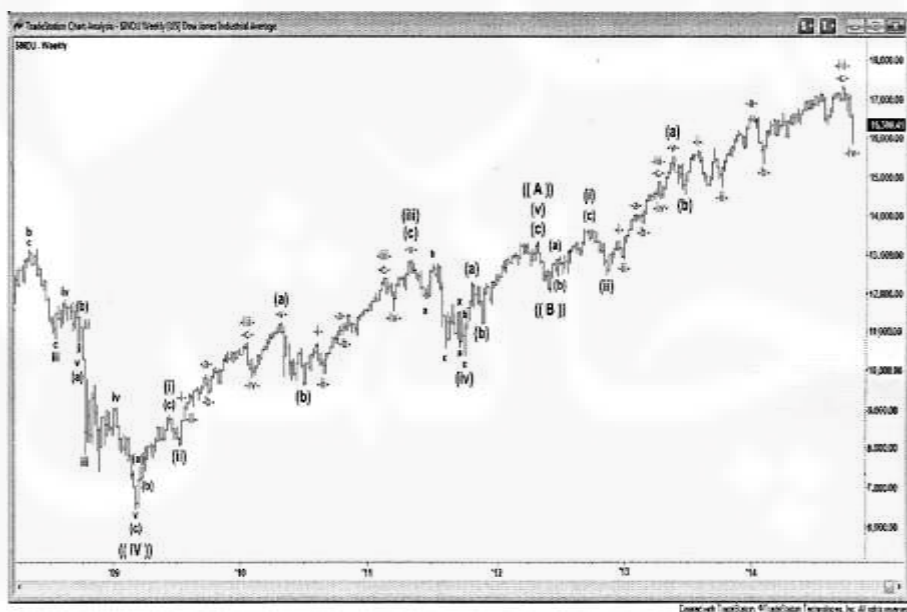

However, I doubt we'd get below 9,300-9,400. Next move will be up to around 12,600 give or take 200 points. That will then provide a pullback which will have a strong chance of a retracement over 20% to whip everyone back to a bear market before it goes up. That next rally actually has a chance of breaking marginally above 14,168 to everyone's delight at a real bull market ... before lower for another whipsaw - which I fancy (but can't tell at this point) will be quite deep...
